tour with sharpened concern over the threat posed by Red China all across Southeast Asia, South Asia and throughout the Western Pacific region.

Humphrey might be expected to speak confidently in public. But he expresses guarded optimism in private as well.

Asked to cite specific reasons, he acknowledges it is more a feeling than anything that can be documented.

This feeling set in after conversations with U.S. military and civilian officials at various levels in Viet Nam, from admittedly kaleidoscopic on-the-spot observations, and from hard talks with Viet Nam's leaders, chiefly Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky.

The vice president, it is known, set out for Viet Nam not knowing what he would find — even though he had had the benefit of regular U.S. briefings and had been current on intelligence reports and evaluations.

His intensified apprehension about Red China grew out of a series of cards-on-the-table discussions with government chiefs, particularly those of Thailand, Laos, India, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines.

In a way, the trip was an education for Humphrey, despite his long familiarity with world problems from years as a U.S. senator.

The mission started out appearing to be a sort of drum-beating exercise, merchandising the new emphasis on social and economic reform measures which emerged from the Honolulu conference between President Johnson and South Viet namese leaders.

But it soon became evident that Humphrey's aims were broader than that.

In Viet Nam, he sought to gauge the sincerity of Ky and others in the Saigon government and the practicality of their plans for "rural reconstruction" and similar uplift measures.

Humphrey convinced himself that Ky means what he says and that the plans are generally sound. But the vice president is under no illusions that the execution of those plans will be easy, particularly because South Viet Nam is short on trained technicians and specialists.

Happenings in World on Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

America's hopes for landing a man on the moon got a big boost over the weekend by the successful flight of an unmanned Apollo moonship.

The 22-story Saturn 1B mightiest rocket ever launched by the United States, hurtled the space vehicle on a 40-minute light down the Atlantic from Cape Kennedy Saturday. The 11,000-pound cabin section in which astronauts will ride parachuted safely into the ocean and was picked up by the aircraft carrier Boxer.

The weekend also saw these top Viet Nam developments:

President Johnson said his desk is clear of all requests for more troops in Viet Nam. He told a Saturday news conference he thinks he can meet additional requests expected next summer "without any great strain on our forces."

Later, he held an unheralded two-hour conference with top officials concerning the nation's economy. A White House spokesman said Johnson fears "some people are thinking more about wages and profits than men who are giving their lives in Viet Nam."

A statement from the AFL-CIO Executive Council urged the government to boost taxes on "skyrocketing" corporation profits if necessary to pay war costs or curb inflation. It said: "The poor should not be compelled to bear the major burden of the conflict in Viet Nam."

Pentagon enlistment figures showed young men are volunteering for the armed services at the highest levels since last fall's big Viet Nam buildup.

A victim of the Viet Nam fighting, Spec. 4 Daniel Fernandez, 21, was given a hero's burial on a grassy hillside near Santa Fe, N.M. Fernandez, recommended for his nation's highest military decoration, the Medal of Honor, died after he flung himself on an exploding grenade to protect his comrades.

Government upheavals produced these weekend developments:

Radio Ghana said the military leaders of Ghana's revolution which overthrew President Kwame Nkrumah are anxious to turn their powers over to civilians.

The new Socialist regime which seized power in Syria Wednesday officially said that 41 were killed and 95 wounded in the revolution, the most savage of Syria's 15 coups in the past 17 years.

In its first declaration of foreign policy, Syria's new leaders said in an official newspaper Sunday that the country will move closer to the Communist bloc.

The U.S. Commerce Department said it is putting controls on all exports to Southern Rhodesia, where a white-controlled government has declared its independence of Great Britain.

President Johnson named Andrew F. Brimmer, 39, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. Brimmer is the first Negro to be nominated for a place on the Federal Reserve Board.

The wife of an $11.20-a-week coal yard worker in East London, South Africa, gave birth to quintuplets. The father, Tafa Mtshakane, 41, got the day off from work. The mother, Ngesi, about 37, and three boys and two girls were reported in good condition.

Sukarno Aide

SINGAPORE (AP)—A former member of Indonesian President Sukarno's palace guard has denied that he staged last October's coup attempt, radio Jakarta reported today.

Lt. Col. Untung denied all charges against him Wednesday night, the radio said in a broadcast monitored here.

Untung is charged with having plotted to overthrow the government and with leading the coup attempt, the radio said.

Final Effort by State in Murder Trial

By ARTHUR EVERETT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The state makes a final effort today to tighten its circumstantial murder case against Candace Mossler and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers.

Both the state and the defense have fallen short of promises they made to the all-male jury at the outset of the sensational trial. The time for making good on them is running short.

Rebuttal testimony from state witnesses was expected to consume at least a day as the trial entered its seventh week. The case may get to the jury within a few days.

Mrs. Mossler and Powers are on trial for their lives in the June 30, 1964 bludgeoning and knifing of her multimillionaire husband, Jacques Mossler, 69. The state claims aunt and nephew were illicit lovers.

In its opening statement, the state said it would offer evidence that Powers once quarreled with his uncle and threatened, "You will regret this to the longest day of your life."

Circuit Judge George Schulz barred this testimony because of the manner in which it was obtained.

Thereafter, the state contented itself with a witness who testified Powers told him he loved his aunt and "he'd even kill for her."

There was state testimony also from an employee of Powers that the defendant repeatedly plunged a knife into a desk top and said in reference to his uncle that "if I had my way and nobody would find out, I'd take that knife and jug (stab) and jug and jug him until he was dead."

The state also promised to produce testimony that Mrs. Mossler originally blamed her husband's slaying on robbers "then changed her plan and set out to destroy her husband's reputation by accusing him of being a homosexual in order to cover up for herself and her nephew Powers."

No direct testimony was produced by the state of any robbery story related by Mrs. Mossler.

The defense also failed to back up some of its promises, notably one by Powers' attorney, Percy Foreman, who said at the trial's opening that the evidence would show "there is no fetish in psychopathic sexuality that Jacques Mossler did not indulge in. He liked to pick up strangers who were responsive to his sexual deviations."

The defense theme is that Mossler could have been slain by a comrad in an underworld of sexual perversion.

A Mossler employee did testify that he shared an apartment with the victim briefly, but added that neither he nor Mossler were sexually abnormal.

Visited Another Famous American

CHARLESTOWN, Nev. (AP) — It may have been Washington's birthday but the Queen of England visited the birthplace of another famous American, Alexander Hamilton. Queen Elizabeth II, on a Caribbean cruise, toured the island of Nevis Tuesday in the British West Indies. She was only there an hour but at least half of the 12,000 islanders turned out to welcome her.

(NEA Radio-Telephoto)

BACK TO BLIGHTY—The new Mrs. George Harrison wasn't exactly dressed for the situation the couple ran into at London airport. The Beatie and his bride, former model Patti Boyd, flew home to rain and cold after their honeymoon in the sunny Caribbean.

WILL IT SELL?—Italian designer Forquet of Rome went all out in the current bare fashion trend with this little number, described as an evening dress, featuring a mass of beads for a bodice and very little else. The beaded bib is worn over hip-hugging pantaloons.

SPICIER ROLES—Gena Rowlands advocates better parts for women in U.S. movies so that American actresses can attain the same popularity achieved by their European counterparts. In other words, Gena tells Hollywood, stop being "anti-woman."

Men, Calves Die in Plane Crash

MILAN, Italy. (AP) — A Belgian freight plane crashed, landing in a heavy fog at Milan's airport, killing two men aboard and the cargo of 167 calves.

The partly burned wreckage was found on a firm 500 yards from the runway. There was no immediate indication of the cause of the crash. Wreckage and burned carcasses were strewn over the farm field.

Three of the dead men were Belgian crewmen of the DC6 plane. The fourth man was the Italian importer of the calves.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bittel

Warning To New Widows

Dear Helen: I recently lost my husband, and this was crushing enough to sink me. I used to think the stories about widows being harassed by inveterate house salesmen and sales people of all kinds were exaggerated, but no more. I had to get an unlisted phone so that I wouldn't be driven out of my mind by the calls from people wanting to cash in on my insurance, and inheritance. (It was published in the paper, how much of an estate my husband left.) One man in particular called me three times a day. He even wanted me to invest my entire insurance check in his "securities."

Thank heavens I'm not an easy mark, but think of the widows who, grief-stricken and not thinking straight, look on these "sympathetic" men as friends who will manage all their affairs.

Would another word of warning be appropriate in your fine column? — Recent Widow

Dear W: New widows need all the warnings they can get from every source, and here's mine: Don't make snap decisions, especially on money matters. Don't sacrifice the house, the car, the belongings you shared, simply because — right now — you can't bear to own them alone. Wait until the wound heals a little, and then seek the advice of your lawyer, your husband's executor or a friend with a good business head.

Never, but NEVER listen to the kind of "investment counselor" who intrudes on a widow in the first few weeks of her bereavement. He's more interested in your money than your future. You can rid yourself of these predatory characters with three words, "See my lawyer." — H.

Is She Putting Me On?

Dear Helen: After having known a certain boy for some time, I was invited by him to meet his mother. When I got there it was a bachelor apartment. I waited and waited. His mother never came.

Well, Helen, he married me after some pressure from my parents. We have been happily for a long time. So you can see that kind of marriage CAN work out. What's your opinion? — One Who Knows

Dear One: My opinion (backed up by your putting a "boy" in a bachelor apartment) is that you're putting me on.

Not that girls don't get invited "home" to see mothers who aren't there — that's Tactic No. 3 in the Wolf's Manual. I just have a feeling it never happened to YOU. I case I'm wrong, many happy returns — to the apartment, now that it's legal. — H.

Dear Helen: Here's a warning about those telephone surveys.

A friend of mine was called, told the questioner was making a survey for a national manufacturer and would she answer a few questions. Then he asked her if they owned a color TV, a vacuum sweeper, a power lawn mower, and what model year? She was cooperative. He asked to continue the survey at their home when her husband was there and she said "Not tonight, we won't be home."

Which wasn't very smart. That night while they were away from their house was broken into and among other things stolen were a color TV, a vacuum sweeper and a power mower, all practically new.

It would appear that thieves these days aren't content to take chances on the merchandise they steal — they check first to see whether it's good enough to be worth their effort! — Clammed up

NEW YORK (AP)—It costs a lot of money to turn out television shows, even poor ones. Jackie Gleason's Saturday night hour, for example, has a production budget of around $180,000 a week and the bill for the show when the cost of airtime is added, brings the tab well over $300,000.

The so-called "cheap shows" — those with $40,000 production budgets like "To Tell the Truth" and "I've Got a Secret" — build up expensively. With time costs they come to well over $100,000 per evening show.

This season's crop of hour programs have budgets ranging from around $130,000 per episode upwards. Variety shows with their needs for new sets and costumes weekly, not only run high, but do not have much re-use value. But the half-hour situation comedies, knocked out for sums ranging from $55,000 to $90,000, are like money in the bank. Not only can they be rerun during the summer season but can later be sold and resold profitably as syndicated series.

Approximately 40 per cent of the shows on the three major networks are dropped each year.

Next season, the usual need for 30-odd new series has been further reduced by CBS' decision to have two nights of feature films instead of only one, as it had this season. With NBC devoting two nights to movies and ABC one, the public will be treated to five nights and 10 hours of films a week.

Lucille Ball, who each season flirts with the idea of quitting the weekly show grind, has once again come to terms with CBS for another season of "The Lucy Show."

Maine Seems to Want Clay, Terrell Fight

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Pittsburgh is out of the running for the Cassius Clay-Ernie Terrell fight, and Chicago is likely to be after today.

But not Bangor, Maine. The State of Maine, host to the highly controversial, loudly disputed and generally derided second fight between Clay and Sonny Liston, made a bid for Clay-Terrell Sunday night, a bid that depends on the action of the Illinois Athletic Commission. The Illinois commission was scheduled to resume its hearings today on whether to allow the fight to go on. Most observers feel there is little chance the commission will give it the go-ahead.

And a Pittsburgh promoter withdrew an offer to stage the bout if it's kicked out of Illinois. But a spokesman for Sam Michael, co-promoter of the Clay-Liston fight in Lewiston, Maine, said Sunday night that efforts are being made to get the fight staged in Bangor.

The announcement was made by Joseph L. Michael, brother and business associate of the promoter. The Illinois Commission recessed its hearing Friday when Clay, who had been expected to apologize for making "unpatriotic remarks," turned the meeting into a shouting match with Commissioner Joe Robichaux.

Robichaux kept addressing Clay as Cassius Clay and the generally accepted heavyweight champion kept interrupting and insisting Robichaux address him by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali. Shortly after the recess, Atty. Gen. William G. Clark of Illinois called a press conference and revealed that the license issued to the promoters for the March 29 bout in the International Amphitheatre was not legal. Clark pointed to Section 12 of the Illinois Sports Act and said that under the law a corporation promoting a fight must have the names of at least 50 individuals. The license issued for the fight listed only two names.

And to further complicate matters, Clark said he doubted if the licenses issued to Clay and Terrell were legal under section 23 of the same act which deals with conduct detrimental to boxing.

The furor all began less than two weeks ago when Clay's Louisville draft board reclassified him from 1-Y to 1-A.

The volatile Clay made a string of remarks over his reclassification which Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner termed "unpatriotic" and "disgusting" and asked the commission to reconsider the issuance of Illinois licenses to the fighters.

Celtics Fail to Remain Bullet Proof
By The Associated Press
Five weeks ago the Boston Celtics were Bullet-proof. Today they're an entry on the basketball report. The Baltimore Bullets, triggered by Johnny Green and Gus Johnson, leveled Boston with a 40-point third-quarter volley Sunday and blasted the defending National Basketball Association kings 132-92. The most unresisted loss absorbed by the Celtics in six years trimmed their Eastern Division lead to 1½ games over the Philadelphia 76ers. St. Louis sparked by veteran Cliff Hagan, trimmed Detroit 121-114 in the only other game on Sunday's schedule. Red Auerbach's Celtics, who swept their first six games against Baltimore this season, have been cannon-fodder for the Bullets in the last three all on the Baltimore court. The Bullets whipped them 142-107 Jan. 22 followed up with a 113-94 decision Feb. 5 and rattled them Sunday in the nationally televised game as six players hit for 14 points and up. Green, who came off the bench in the second quarter to lead a blistering fast break that eventually broke open the game, topped the point parade with 24, one more than Johnson.

Russians Walk Out on Track Meet

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Russians, who run very well, decided to walk instead. So they walked right out of the AAU national indoor track and field championships in Albuquerque this weekend.

"It's been so long," said Russian coach Gabriel Korobkov after his eight-man team had dominated the All-Eastern Games in Baltimore Saturday. "We are tired."

"We must get home to prepare for the U.S.S.R. championships."

So the Russians, who had entered the Albuquerque meet, skipped out Sunday, joining some 64 Eastern colleges who will not send their athletes to the meet.

Those colleges have entered the IC4A championships in New York's Madison Square Garden Saturday, the same day as the last of the two-day AAU meet. In addition to the Russians and most of the Eastern schools, Jim Ryun and Ron Clarke, two of the brightest stars of the weekend activity, will be among the missing at Albuquerque.

The Australian Clarke was scheduled to compete, but said he was going home after breaking the indoor two-mile record with a clocking of 8:28.8 in San Francisco. Ryun is scheduled for another meet.

Ryun, the 18-year-old Kansas sensation, ran the first American sub-four indoor mile of the season in the Big Eight championship at Kansas City, and he did it under very adverse conditions.

First of all, he was almost a janitor in his closest competitor in the freshman mile, finishing in 3:59.6 despite the lack of competition. And he did it on an extremely tight, 12-lap track.

The Russians dominated the Baltimore meet, taking five events. Igor Ter-Ovanesyan won the broad jump at 26-3. Tatjana Schelkova took the women's broad jump at 21-5. Taisiya Chenchik won the women's high jump at 5-8. Gennady Bliznyev topped the pole vault at 16-6. and Viktor Kudinsky won the two-mile in 8:44.

S. State Is Trying to Go to NIT Meet
PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Southern State tries to earn a trip to Kansas City tonight when the Muleriders battle Arkansas State Teachers College for the championship of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference basketball tournament. One thing is almost certain, and that is a bitter struggle between the two AIC powerhouses, especially if previous battles are indicative of things to come. The Muleriders hold a 2-1 edge over ASTC this year and each team posted an overtime victory. "It'll be the same type game," said SSC Coach W. T. Watson. "The team that makes the fewest mistakes will win." "We are just glad to be in the finals, but with Teachers, it will be a tough game," Watson said. ASTC Coach Cliff Horton had the same sentiments. "We are looking for a tough ball game," Horton said. "Southern State is real tough defensively so they're pretty consistent." "I imagine it will be a close game unless one team plays real well and the other one doesn't," he said. In semifinals Saturday, Southern State tripped Little Rock University 62-59 and ASTC beat John Brown University 90-82 in overtime. Should ASTC win tonight's game, the teams would meet here again Tuesday night to determine District 17's representative in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament at Kansas City. ASTC pulled away from JBU on free throws in the overtime after battling to a 78-76 tie in regulation play. Mickey Johnson scored 26 points for ASTC and Roger Pickard had 23 for JBU. SSC pulled away from LRT by three points in the final three minutes and never trailed again. Charlie Jones led SSC with 16 points while LRT's Dolson took game-winning shots with 21.

Bobcats Win Another Key District Game

By LARRY DON WRIGHT
Hope Star Sports Writer
The Hope Bobcats overcame the last big obstacle standing in the way of their trip to the State Tournament Saturday night, by pounding the persistent Malvern Leopards, 84-72, in a fast moving 4AA affair at Malvern.

The victory allowed the Cats to maintain a firm hold on 3rd place in the district standings with only one game remaining in conference play. They meet the last placed Camden Panthers Thursday in a home game to finish out the season.

Hope really got wound up in the second quarter as they rolled up 27 points in that period alone to take a 17 point lead at half time. Then they beat off a daring second half comeback effort by the home team for their second win over the Leopards of the week.

The Cats handed Malvern a humiliating 92-70 defeat in Jones Field House last Tuesday in a make up match.

Things got off to a slow start as compared with the high final score. After four full minutes of play there had been a grand total of only six points scored and only two of these by Hope.

But the Bobcats finally got zeroed in and the final twelve minutes of the first half saw the visitors push in 43 points and take a halftime lead of 45 to 28.

The Leopards hit the court after intermission with a head of steam. Their come from behind march however was stymied by the Cats who never broke stride. Had Hope let up or gotten careless at any point the Leopards had the momentum to catch up.

Malvern was able to keep the tremendous second half pace set by the Bobcats but they couldn't manage to overcome the convincing Hope lead which had been mounted through the first two quarters.

Also another aiding factor for the Cats was that four of Malvern's starting five left the game early because of fouling trouble.

In individual scoring Bobcat Ronnie Ingram led both teams 28 points. He failed to score during the slow first period, but came on strong the rest of the game adding 16 points to his credit in the second quarter alone.

Right behind Ingram was Dennis Ramsey who pumped in 25 points. David "Pogo" Griffin had 14. Stan Parris had 8, Bobby McGill 7, and Larry May 2. The win boosted the Cats district record to 10 wins and five losses, and the season mark to 15-7.

Tuesday night the Bobcats journey to Texarkana for a non-conference tilt with the Arkansas High Razorbacks. The Hogs of Class AAA should present a real challenge to the Hope boys.

Then on Thursday night the Cats close out both district competition and regular season play as they host the Camden Panthers in Jones Field House.

The Panthers have yet to win in 4AA play and unless their streak is broken Thursday Hope will wind the season out in a guaranteed third place and possibly second depending on how Smackover fares in their two remaining games.

The "B" team will accompany the Bobcats in both outings this week. Their preliminary game will begin at 8:30 both nights.

Rosston Calls Team Off of Cage Court

By CALVIN MULBROW
Rosston's Coach Bradford forfeited the game Saturday night in Harris gym to Yerger, and Rosston led by 5 points with less than two minutes to play in the fourth period.

Coach Bradford called his team off the court when an error was made in the official score book. The score keeper, Willie Preston, was counting the team fouls on Yerger as Thompson, a Boston player, went to the line after being fouled. Preston, not knowing this, didn't indicate to the referees that Thompson was shooting a one and one with less than two minutes to play. Coach Bradford, after referees had given the ball to Yerger, rose from the bench and said, "Let's go home," to his team.

Coach J. Ware Jr. then went over and told Coach Bradford the same error had been made on Yerger in the first half. Coach Bradford then complained that the books were to be kept by adults and I don't have to play under these conditions. Yerger was then declared winner of the game with Rosston leading 62-59. Yerger's next game will be in the Rosston. They will play Princeton in the District 3 Tournament.

Harrison Regains Lead in Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Harrison, a Class AA powerhouse with a 29-0 record, clung to the lead today in the Arkansas Associated Press high school basketball poll, but Little Rock Central crept a little closer to the top.

The Gobblins got six first place votes and 87 points in the balloting by nine sports writers and sportscasters. Central got three votes for the No. 1 spot and 82 points.

Last week, the Tigers got only one first place vote and trailed the Gobblins by nine points. Mountain Home, 26-3, retained its No. 3 ranking, but below the Bombers there came a shakeup.

Fort Smith Southside, Jonesboro and Class A white Hall, 31-2, climbed one notch each into the fourth, fifth and sixth spots, respectively.

The vacancies occurred when North Little Rock, last week's No. 4 team, lost two games during the week and plunged to seventh place.

Paragould moved up one spot to eighth and Greenbrier, the defending Class B state champion, entered the rankings for the first time as the No. 9 team. Greenbrier has a 35-1 record.

Pine Bluff and Little Rock McClellan tied for 10th place. The final poll will be released next week.

Results of the poll, with first place votes in parentheses, and total points at right:

1. Harrison (18) 87
2. Little Rock Central (3) 82
3. Mountain Home 57
4. Fort Smith Southside 55
5. Jonesboro 47
6. White Hall 34
7. North Little Rock 33
8. Paragould 27
9. Greenbrier 19
10. (tie) Pine Bluff 12
11. Little Rock McClellan 12

No Show for Best Show

In the midst of all his joys, since Kentucky remains unbeaten, Baron Adolph Rupp feels neglected. He's mad at the basketball pros because they haven't been around to catch his No. 1 Wildcats in action. No scout has requested a single ticket to any of the Kentucky home games this season.

Greater love hath no man than Dick Arrington. The All-American guard from Notre Dame gave $5,000 of the bonus money he collected from the Boston Patriots back to his alma mater.

John Pennel, the Sullivan Award-winning pole vaulter, has the hair of a Beagle and the build of a pro halfback. But every time he stands at the head of the runway, he's literally risking his health. "Sometimes," he says, "there's no telling where that pole will take you—even out of the pits." He got his motivation from swinging in the back yard on a pole, and he doesn't blame his slipped disc on vaulting. The best man he ever saw: ill-fated Brian Sternberg, who was crippled in an accident on the trampoline.

Why Dave DeBusschere feels he can coach and play with the Detroit Pistons at the same time: "All there is to basketball is get the ball off the boards and run. Boston showed that."

Since Cassius Clay put a price tag on Army service a couple of bombers every time he fights should entitle him to special consideration. I'm wondering why I didn't get preferential treatment when the enemy was Adolf Hitler. Every time I bought a postage stamp, I was paying for one ounce of K-rations.

Frank Ramsey made the "sixth man" famous in basketball but it's my feeling that John Havlicek, his successor on the Celtics, is a notch above the original in value.

The spirit of sports costs: The New York Knicks lost their chance to grab Walt Bellamy from Indiana in the draft five years ago because the NBA expanded into Chicago just at that time. To get Bellamy this year from the Bulls, reveals prey Ned Irish, cost the Knicks 50 per cent more than Chicago paid for the whole franchise in 1961 (which included the draft rights to Bellamy).

No off-season job this year for John Unitas, the Colts' quarterback. He's spending all his days, since his return from Viet Nam, at a hospital rehabilitation center—exercising the knee which was operated on last December.

Darrell Newman of Fresno State vies with Charley Green of Nebraska for the right to be called America's fastest man, even though he looks like Y. A. Title in shorts. The Californian, who started losing his hair at 17 (it's all gone now at 22), isn't sensitive about his bald pate. Feels it's an identification sign.

"People have no trouble picking me out at a track meet," grins the Bald Bullet. Probably lowers the wind resistance, too.

All-pro defensive back Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys is on a special weights program between seasons, hoping to tack on 12 pounds. He finished last year at 184. But not to put more oomph into his tackling. He wants a shot at carrying the ball, where the big money is.

Between you'n'me, that's a big bill of goods the Packers are peddling about Dennis Clark, lost in the expansion draft, being a great quarterback prospect. That's not what some of the veteran Packers say. As a rookie he used to huddle nights with vet qb's Bart Starr, Zeke Brantkowski. Last season he didn't bother—said it was too far across town to their homes. How far can it be across Green Bay?

Kentucky's Little Men Clinch a Tie

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Louie Dampier, a toby 6 feet 10 inches tall, is a basketball oddity, is a prime reason why unbeaten Kentucky is headed for its 15th appearance in the NCAA tournament and a chance for an unprecedented fifth championship. He scored 29 points Saturday night as the top-ranked Wildcats defeated Tennessee 78-64 for their 23rd victory and clinched at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference crown. He and Pat Riley, both juniors, lead Kentucky in scoring, each averaging about 21½ points a game.

Moving into the NCAA with Kentucky following Saturday's games were Davidson, Cincinnati and Miami of Ohio.

Davidson won its first Southern Conference title, defeating West Virginia in the tournament final 80-69 behind Dick Snyder's 24 points.

Cincinnati clinched the Missouri Valley crown by trimming Drake 56-49, and Miami grabbed the Mid-American Conference crown with a 79-72 triumph over Toledo.

Duke's second-ranked Blue Devils ended their regular season with a 77-63 victory over North Carolina. Now they get set for the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, which they must win in order to get to the NCAA. Their first game is against Wake Forest Thursday.

Kansas, No. 6, took a half-game lead in the Big Eight by beating Nebraska, No. 8, its first league loss 110-72, while 16th-ranked Michigan held onto a one-game margin in the Big Ten, crushing Purdue 105-85.

Utha clinched a tie for the Western Athletic Conference title with a 97-85 triumph over New Mexico. Southern Methodist pulled into a first-place tie with Texas A&M in the Southwest Conference by edging Texas 71-69.

Oregon State retained a 1½-game lead in the Pacific Athletic Conference with a 64-47 victory over Washington State while the University of Pacific snapped San Francisco's 34-game home-court winning streak 82-71 and grabbed a one-game lead over the Dons in the West Coast Athletic Conference.

Penn missed a chance at putting away the Ivy League crown, losing at Cornell 81-76. Among the independents, seventh-ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., wallowed Xavier of Ohio 101-83, the ninth-ranked Providence edged Holy Cross 81-72, St. John's downed Marquette 70-68, Houston trampled Portland 109-84, Army stopped Navy 70-56, and Wayne nipped De Paul 76-73.

THE WELL CHILD

Answers Being Sought For Bedwetting Problem

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The problem of bedwetting in children appears to be more complex than it was once thought to be. There is undoubtedly an emotional factor in many, and probably most, cases.

Too much emphasis on toilet training before a child reaches his third birthday, instead of preventing bedwetting, may aggravate it. Most children will establish the habit of staying dry all night spontaneously by the time they are 5.

There are a variety of devices that set off an alarm when the first stream of urine completes an electric circuit. These have the disadvantage of alerting the child and/or parents just a little too late and are not widely recommended.

The urologists (kidney and bladder specialists) are entering the picture in ever-increasing numbers with evidence to show that a very narrow urinary outlet, a hard fact to determine, is a possible cause.

In other children, a small bladder or a bladder irritation may be a factor. The small outlet and the bladder irritation, if present, are not hard to cure but the size of the bladder, if it can be modified at all, requires years of training by holding the urine for long periods after the initial urge to urinate. Even this type of training must be carefully supervised or kidney complications could arise. Finally, in a large number of cases, it is shown that there is no organic disease. If this is so, the drug imipramine may be helpful. It must, however, be used under careful medical supervision.

Q—My daughter died at age 2 of a Wilms' tumor. The doctor said it was discovered too late. Since I now have two boys (ages 1 and 2), could you tell me what symptoms to look for? Does this disease run in certain families?

A—Cancer of the kidney in early childhood (Wilms' tumor) is diagnosed by feeling a hard, nontender mass in the kidney region, usually on one side only. Blood may appear in the urine, but, when this occurs, if it is due to a Wilms' tumor, the disease is too far advanced for treatment to be effective. The cause is unknown but there is no evidence that it runs in families.

As soon as the diagnosis is made, the tumor should be removed. This should be followed by deep X-ray therapy over the kidney region. Recent reports indicate that, in addition to these measures, giving dactinomycin improves the victim's chances for survival.

One of the first things a declarer at a suit contract should do is look at dummy's longest suit and then ask himself: "Can I set up one or more long suit tricks in that suit?"

He also has to consider the possibility that his trumps won't last and the necessity of an entry to dummy after the suit is established.

Let's see how South should plan his play at six spades on today's hand. He looks over dummy and sees that he surely must lose one club trick. He also has a possible losing trick in hearts but has two ways to finesse for the queen if he has to.

Maybe he can avoid the heart finesse entirely. There is a five-card club suit in dummy and perhaps he can set up that fifth club. There is nothing to lose by trying unless someone is unkind enough to trump a second diamond or the first heart lead. That chance is so slight that South should take the risk.

Therefore, he leads out his deuce of clubs at trick two. Whichever opponent wins the club trick leads a second diamond. When no one trumps South is ready to play more clubs. He enters dummy with the eight of spades and ruffs a club high. Then back to dummy for another club ruff.

If one opponent shows out, there will be no way to set up that fifth club in dummy. In that case South still has the heart play at his disposal but if both opponents follow to the third club, South's worries are over. He goes back to dummy with the queen of spades and proceeds to ruff a fourth club. This sets up dummy's last club as a winner.

South gets back to dummy with the ace of hearts and discards one heart on the good club.

What do you do?

A—Pass. A double at this time might help declarer's play of the hand. Of course, if you are hungry, a double may also lead to a splendid result.

7 States Get Together on River Water

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After half a century of squabbling over the Colorado River's increasingly vital water, seven Western states are about to get together on a plan to tap one of the major rivers of three other states.

The plan could eventually cost more than $2 billion.

"This is not just a regional problem," a water expert says.

HOPE (ARK.) STAR, Printed by Offset

"The rest of the country will eat better if the West works out an equitable way of dividing its water."

The plan envisions:

1. Immediate start on construction of a $1.2-billion project to move Colorado River water southward to Arizona's booming Phoenix and Tucson areas.

2. Eventual construction of an aqueduct linking the heavily used Colorado with either the little-exploited Columbia River, which has 10 times the Colorado's flow, or its closer tributary the Snake River. Hookup with the Columbia would cost $11 billion with the Snake $4 billion.

The big hitch, of course, is opposition from Washington and Oregon, which border on the Columbia, and Idaho, through which the Snake flows.

Representatives of the seven Colorado River basin states — Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada and California — agreed at a meeting here Jan. 27 on most of the technical language of a bill to be submitted to the House subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation.

The proposed legislation calls for a quick start on the big central Arizona project, and also for a massive survey of ways to channel additional water into the Colorado so that other users of that river, primarily California, will have enough for the growing populations too.

The legislation would not call for joining the Colorado with the Columbia or the Snake — feasibility of that is lessor the survey to determine. But most water experts say the Columbia and the Snake are about the only sources big enough to give the Colorado's users the amount of water they need.

The Jan. 27 agreement was a major accomplishment. It meant that the Colorado basin states were ready to stop quarreling amongst themselves over how to split up the dwindling waters of the Colorado — and start looking for ways of increasing the Colorado's flow.

The Colorado basin's plan would require some form of federal funding, thus taxing even the citizens of distant states, but proponents say it holds the key to future prosperity of a vast area consuming a large portion of those states' products.

This is not, of course, the lure held out to the little-industrialized Northwestern states. Advocates of the Colorado basin plan hope to overcome their opposition to tapping the Columbia or Snake rivers by:

1. Including irrigation and power projects which the Northwest sorely needs.

2. Pointing out the pump-priming effect of spending billions on construction of the aqueduct, which could be up to 1,000 miles long.

Although some may regard the conflict a just one more squabble over water in the West, its outcome will affect the whole country.

Some experts believe the West Coast someday will be the center of the United States' population. California is already the most populous state in the Union. And the major source of water for its new millions — the Colorado — is dwindling. Once estimated to have an annual flow of 18 million acre feet, in recent years it has dropped as low as 12 million. And of this the United States has guaranteed at least 1.5 million will flow down into Mexico.

Australia's native trees are evergreens, which keep their leaves throughout the year but lose their bark in winter.

Too Sick To Work?

As the result of a stroke, Mary suffered permanent disability in one hand. This made it impossible for her to carry on her usual job in a textile mill. So she put in a claim for disability benefits under the federal Social Security Act.

However, her claim was turned down. Reason: she was still able to perform other jobs in the mill which were open to her.

Generally speaking, the Social Security Act does provide monthly cash payments to an eligible workman with a long term disability. The purpose is to "bridge the gap" until he is old enough to collect retirement benefits.

But when is a person sufficiently disabled to qualify for aid? The law seeks to help those truly in need, yet not those who in all fairness could still earn their own living.

Thus, you ordinarily cannot collect benefits if your handicap is one that could be remedied with a reasonable exercise of will power. In one case a man was suffering from back pains, too severe to allow him to work. However, it appeared that his condition could be greatly improved if he would diet off some excess poundage.

Under these circumstances, a court held he was not disabled in the sense that the law meant—and therefore he did not qualify for disability payments.

Another rule, illustrated by Mary's case above, is that you are not disabled merely because you can no longer do exactly the same job you have done in the past. The law expects you to take an alternative job, if you are fitted for it.

On the other hand, the law does not expect you to seek work beyond your capacities. For example: A workman, forced by injuries to give up manual labor, was still physically able to do clerical work at a desk. But he had neither the education nor the experience for it. Therefore, a court held him sufficiently disabled to qualify for benefits.

Nor must you seek a kind of work which you could do only at the cost of grievous pain and effort. As one judge put it, the law should not be applied so sternly that it would aid only the "totally helpless and bedridden" and "those at death's door."

Suspects Rights to Be Protected

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has added its influential voice to the mounting public debate over the rights of suspects being questioned by the police.

Its view, as expressed by the Justice Department to the Supreme Court, immediate questioning by police is a vital tool of law enforcement. Confessions so obtained should be admitted in court unless it is proved they have been unconstitutionally compelled.

While asking the high court to endorse the right of policemen to question their suspects, the department urged in a brief filed Thursday that the courts examine each case individually for possible violations of constitutional rights, rather than attempt to set forth a list of rules to apply to all cases.

It was the Justice Department's first formal expression of opinion in a legal battle that has seen law enforcement officials castigate the Supreme Court for so tying their hands with constitutional limitations that they are unable to accomplish their foremost mission: fighting crime.

The last major high court ruling was in the much publicized case of Danny Escobedo, whose Chicago murder conviction was overturned by the court because the police questioning him refused to allow him to see his lawyer, who was in the police station at the time.

At the heart of the debate are two provisions of the Constitution's Bill of Rights: the Fifth Amendment's dictum that a defendant may not "be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself," and the Sixth Amendment's guarantee that an accused person shall have "in all criminal prosecutions" the right "to have the assistance of counsel for his defense."

The government's view came to light in one of five cases before the court — four state and one federal — involving the use in criminal trial of self-incriminating statements in response to police or FBI questioning.

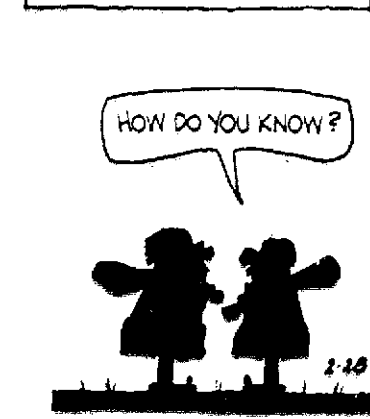

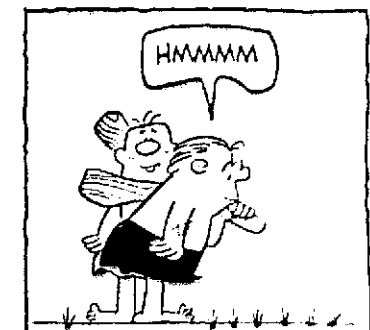

Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall, who submitted the brief Thursday, will argue for the government when the court takes up the cases, probably next week.

The government brief went far beyond the case at issue, in which Carl Calvin Westover was sentenced to 30 years in prison for the armed robbery of two California banks after having confessed his guilt upon questioning by FBI agents.

The right to counsel, the government said, does not apply in that postarrest questioning period before a suspect has been taken before a magistrate or a court. And the mere fact that a man is in police custody — assuming his answers are not forced from him and he is aware that he need not answer at all — cannot be said to violate his privilege against self-incrimination, the government argued.

Give what you have. To someone it may be better than you dare to think. — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, American poet.

Old Ghost Haunting Mr. Johnson

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defending its Vietnamese war policies before Congress and country, the Johnson administration is waging a fight against an old ghost of an issue from the early days of the Eisenhower administration 12 years ago.

The present leadership is trying, as Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor did Thursday, to bury the "falling domino" theory as an argument for preventing Communist conquest of South Viet Nam. President Dwight D. Eisenhower advanced the theory at a news conference in 1954; its authorship has been generally attributed to his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles.

Taylor told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he does not approve of this theory "if it means belief in a law of nature which requires the collapse of each neighboring state in an inevitable sequence following a Communist victory in South Viet Nam."

Taylor went on to warn against "the possible effects worldwide" if "the (Communist) war of liberation scores a significant victory" in Viet Nam. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has taken a similar stand on the "domino theory." Like Taylor, he contends the automatic collapse of other Southeast Asian countries — Burma, Thailand, Cambodia, Laos, Malaysia — would not necessarily follow if South Viet Nam should fall. He also argues that "the integrity of the American commitment" all over the world is at stake in Viet Nam.

Such arguments seem to obscure the issue. If U.S. abandonment of South Viet Nam at this stage of the game would wreck the faith of Western Europeans in American defense commitments, it seems obvious that the impact on the countries of Southeast Asia would be even greater. No country there has the power to stand alone against Red China.

An underlying consideration of U.S. strategy for years, in fact, has been that the fall of South Viet Nam to communism would open the way for Red conquest of other countries in the area. Conversely, many top officials believe that the defeat last fall of Communist China's ambition to communize Indonesia was made possible by the political atmosphere created by U.S. defense of South Viet Nam.

The difference between Eisenhower's view of the consequences of a Communist victory in Southeast Asia and the Johnson administration's view seems to be small in essence. Eisenhower told a news conference: "You have a row of dominoes set up; you knock over the first one, and what will happen to the last one is a certainty. It will go over very quickly." Present administration officials simply dispute his point that the process would be automatic—without insisting that the ultimate result might be substantially changed.

The difference is enlightening, however, for small as it is it illustrates how greatly the strategic situation has been altered in Southeast Asia since 1954. When Eisenhower spoke of falling dominoes on April 7 that year, French armies were being defeated in Indochina and a power vacuum was in the making.

Today the United States is heavily engaged in Viet Nam. It is giving military and economic assistance to the avowedly neutralist government of Laos. It has a powerful and growing military position in Thailand. Its sea and air power are dominant in the area. Under Johnson, its commitment to defend South Viet Nam against Communist conquest is total.

Life in Arkansas

By J. C. TILLMAN

A car pulled up behind Deputy Sheriff Raymond Hawkins as he was going home from Russellville to Atkins and started blinking its lights.

Obliquely, Hawkins pulled over. The following car did likewise and its driver strode purposely toward Hawkins' car. You are under citizens arrest for speeding the deputy was informed.

An arrest was made, but it wasn't Hawkins.

The deputy booked his informant for drivin' while intoxicated.

What does a city do when payment comes due on its new fire truck and funds are short? It goes to the people.

That's what officials at Weiner did. And they got enough money in citizen donations to meet the payment on time.

A thank-you note from city officials appeared in the weekly newspaper which serves the community.

David Kaniatobe played football in Southeast Arkansas and in Oklahoma when eligibility requirements weren't so stiff.

This tale is told of him: Kaniatobe played at Good-and Academy, then at Murray, later at Arkadelphia Junior College, at Horatio and at Magnolia. He was a bit older than his colleagues when he played at Horatio, but didn't look it.

At Magnolia, he had a good year and attracted the attention of a Tulane scout.

"You had a good night," the scout told the 220-pound fullback. "Might be interested in getting you down to Tulane."

Then the scout reflected: "Kaniatobe, Kaniatobe," that's an unusual name. Seem to recall someone by that name played at Horatio several years ago. Any relation?

"Same boy," the fullback admitted. "Guess we can forget about that scholarship?"

Let's Go Fishin' BY BOB BREWSTER

FISH-HUNT COMBO

About the time when fishing starts getting good again, along comes a mallard or honker to spoil the fun. Rods are exchanged for scatterguns quicker than it takes a bass to bust a lure, and fishin's pushed out of the outdoors picture for a while.

It's unfortunate so much fishing is neglected, say the lads at Mercury outboards, for there's a great opportunity awaiting the man who takes both rod and gun into the field.

Fish and waterfowl have a lot in common at least from the sportsman's point of view. They both are taken around the same habitat—water. This happy occurrence means that it is possible to enjoy hunting and fishing on the same trip—even the same day.

Let's suppose you head out to a marsh for a day's shoot. The dawn breaks clear and still, and the morning warms until your "long johns" are uncomfortable. After the early feeding flight, "blue bird" sky conditions prevail, and there'll be little activity until evening.

Instead of straining your eyeballs for distant specks that aren't there, why not crank up the motor and visit a few locations where warming conditions are bringing the fish to life. For many hunters, these same marsh and waterlands are the same areas fished earlier in the season. Thus, it's merely a simple chore to dunk a bait in familiar territory.

At this season, says Mercury, your chances of getting fish are exceptionally good. And, even if you fail to score with a shotgun, you'll have a successful day and return home with meat for the pot.

So, take this advice, and pack some fishing gear in with your hunting duffle. If the birds aren't accommodating, fishing may make it up.

Here's How By Sam Hanks

SAVE TIRES AND LIVES

In the last two years, the winter of '64 in the Indianapolis 500 has limited the race without changing tires.

When tires will stand up for 500 miles at a 150-mile-an-hour average on the Speedway, it's a real tribute to their staying qualities.

If we stop to think about it, we all know tires are better than ever. Flats used to be commonplace, but now many drivers have never experienced one—and therein lies a danger.

Too many of us have become complacent about tires. But an under-inflated tire run at turn-pike speeds is a prime candidate for a blowout. We all know what happens when the blow out at high speed, especially a front tire.

Even if you avoid a blowout, driving under-inflated tires takes thousands of miles off their life. Incidentally, contrary to a popular notion, letting air out of your tires is no real help in getting off ice. Sand or rock salt works much better.

So, if you want to save tires and possibly your life—check tire pressures regularly.

Another good way to save tires—and lives—is to replace shock absorbers every 20,000 miles with new Monroe shock absorbers or front and rear Load Leveler stabilizing units. Worn shock absorbers are dangerous and can cost you as much as 17¢ in the life (roughly about 5,000 miles of travel).
